WE DELIVER THE BEST

Food packaging isn't only about practicality. It's also about safety. And among those ordering takeout and delivery, 84% agree that packaging is an important consideration when placing an order. For restaurants – especially those that just added an online ordering system – this means that the right takeout packaging is absolutely essential to getting customers and keeping customers. Packaging offers many benefits. To realize these benefits, you need to take the time to choose packaging that's right for your business.

“ Hot stamping is great at creating a luxury, elegant feeling. ”

“ That material can be glossy, holographic, matte and a wide variety of other textures and almost any colour. ”

TRENDS

Packaging in the food industry is affected by various trends that develop and gain prominence. For example, eco-friendly packaging is taking off with great popularity in multiple industries, including food and beverage. In order to remain at the front end of cutting-edge design, it's wise to stay on top of what your competition is doing. During your packaging design process, try to strike a balance between being creative and being familiar.

DID YOU KNOW THAT...

Food and beverage packaging is more than a pretty box. It is an integral part of a successful new Brand launch and serves as the interface between you and the consumer.

Packaging doesn't come cheap. In fact, packaging costs typically account for 8-10% of overall product costs. In addition to production costs, shipping and distribution costs may be affected based on the packaging materials a businesses chooses to use. Inventory costs that are based on the size of a packaged product will differ based on a product's packaging design.
